

ERICKSON SHOTS TO BAFFLE INDIANS; NATALES WIN, 4-1

Bunched Hits Result in Downfall of Duster Mails

Erick Keeps Tribe Hitting Flies to Outfield In Pinches—Graney's Pinch Hit Scores Only Enemy Run.

CLEVELAND, May 12.—The Indians must have expected today the Nationals were going to be weak on high flies two days in succession, for during the contest they hit eighteen balls into the air. The Nationals, however, must have hid themselves to some secluded spot and indulged in secret practice, for when it came to handling the high boys, which they so ingloriously misjudged and muffed Wednesday, they were letter perfect, winning from the champions, 4 to 1.

It is difficult to score five runs, when the athletes persist in popping up eighteen flies, five of them foul, and it would have been necessary for the Tribe to have scored five today to have won from the Nationals. It meant but little if the first Indian to bat in an inning led off with a single, as it was not in the books for him to register on a couple of pop flies and an easy grounder. For that matter, there was not during the entire nine innings a single case of a Cleveland base runner being advanced a base by means of an infield grounder.

Erickson Worries Champs.

There must have been some reason for the phenomenal reversal of the Redskins at the bat. There was. This particular reason was a man who stands 6 feet 2 inches in height, has sandy hair, a florid face and a nose that is a deceptive side-arm ball. The reason is known on the payroll of the Washington club as Olaf Erickson, a Scandinavian who hails from Jamestown, N. Y.

Upon Olaf seems to have fallen the mantle once worn by Tom Hughes, famous for five or six years as the Cleveland jinx. When Erickson, a Detroit hurler, the Indians used to welcome his entrance to the pitcher's box. As a Tiger he was one of the best stepping-stones to a 300 batting average the Redskins had. It is different now. In a Washington uniform he brings as much joy to an Indian as a case of malaria. During the campaigns of '19 and '20 he had their number, and today he started out to demonstrate he still was their master.

Olaf looks forward for several days to the date when he is slated to pitch against Cleveland. He feels that in a battle he half won the moment he steps in the box. Such was the case today when the Tribe scored but one-quarter of the runs made by Washington, despite the fact that the Nats registered two less hits.

Tribe Scores in Seventh.

Two real blows by Johnston and Speaker in the first inning averted nothing except blasted hopes for the reason that the next two Indians popped out. The Tribe bunched a run in the second, but the pitcher, again two men were left on the sacks as O'Neill and Jamieson were retired by the air route.

So it went until the seventh inning was reached. It was then, in the eighth, that the Tribe escaped a shut-out and it took a pinch hitter, old reliable Jack Graney, to turn the trick with a single against the right-field wall that scored Stephenson. Cleveland had two men left on the sacks at that round, but another air-out brought the rally to an end. Another hope was nurtured in the eighth, when Speaker doubled, only to be withered when the next two died without pain.

Walter Mills was the Cleveland pitcher so unfortunate to be in the line of fire on a day when the Nationals showed they had run out of base hits. The previous afternoon, The Coast southpaw fanned five of his adversaries and allowed but six hits. Such pitcher would have won most of the season. To have won Cleveland this season, he would have had to shut out his opponents and he was not up to that mark, for although he permitted but six hits he let the Nats get five of them in bunches.

Mills Out of Luck.

Two of Washington's runs came in the first round. After Judge had fouled out, Milan singled and scored on Rice's double. Rice took the throw to the plate and scored on Miller's second infield smash. A pass, three singles and a sacrifice by accounted for the other three which were sent across in the fifth. In the other five rounds Mills pitched brilliantly, as did Caldwell, who pitched two rounds he labored as a relief hurler. Still, well-pitched innings, however, were not enough. Cleveland had to have shutout hurling to win and it was not forthcoming.

Manager McBride calls all of his right pitchers first stringers, having been unable thus far to decide upon four whom he wishes to rotate and hold the other four for relief duty.

TILDEN SAILS TO DEFEND TENNIS TITLE IN ENGLAND

National Boys' Champion May Be Paired With Champion Abroad.

NEW YORK, May 12.—William T. Tilden, champion lawn tennis player of the world, sailed today aboard the Mauretania for Europe, to play in France and England in defense of his title. Tilden, Philadelphia is interested chiefly in defending his laurels and the trophy he won a year ago from the world's best at Wimbledon, London, where this renewal of the historic fixture will be held next month.

It was said the intention of Tilden was to land at Cherbourg, and thence to proceed to Paris, where he will participate in the clay court tennis championship against the best in the game. This event, called "Les championnats du monde," will begin May 28 at the Stade Francais, St. Cloud. Other Americans officially entered are Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory and Miss Edith Signorini, who sailed last week, and who will play in the women's events.

SPEED AND HUSTLE OF U. S. GOLFERS AMAZES BRITONS

Quimet and Jones Make Course Look Easy, Says Ted Ray.

HOYLAK, England, May 12.—The British Professional Golfers' Association has made all arrangements to meet the team of American professionals at Glenageary in June. The British team was chosen a fortnight ago.

The seven American amateur golfers have amazed the golf enthusiasts whose habitat is Hoylake. Within a few hours after leaving the boat they were on the tees. This speed and hustle alarmed the venerable people here, who look askance at these modern ideas on the hallowed course.

PLAY BEGINS IN B. C. C. TOURNEY

BALTIMORE, Md., May 12.—Under highly unfavorable weather conditions the qualifying round of the ninth invitation golf tournament of the Baltimore Country Club got underway at the Roland Park course today.

The first thrill came when A. W. Hootch, an outstanding player representing the Washington Golf and Country Club, tied off with R. Marsden Smith, of the Rolling Road Country Club. Using a drive with his good right arm, his drive was a beauty, carrying straight down the center of the long first alley. His second, a mashie, dropped dead on the green, amid a cheer from the small gallery following the play from the shelter of the clubhouse.

It was stated tonight that the rupture was caused by rowing. He has retired from the sport for the rest of the year.

Captain Gore Beaten.

RICHMOND, Va., May 12.—The most important contests thus far held in the Old Dominion Tennis Tournament were played today. A. Gore of Washington, tasted defeat for the first time when he and Howard Hodge, of Greenville, S. C., were defeated by Leonard Beckman, of New York, and Maj. Arthur Yencken, of Washington. Gore also lost his singles match to William Swamy, of Baltimore, 3-6, 4-6.

Yale Crews Shifted.
